Russia's Friendship

EUROPE, HAVING recovered from its war debacle, acts like a drunkard waking up next morning on the sidewalk of the nation floor. He looks reproachfully at the bartender and says: "You got all my money, now take care of me."

The bartender in the eyes of awakening Europe is old Uncle Sam. France and Germany are friends again. England and Germany are friends, but how they hate this country!

H. G. Wells's new book proclaims the Englishmen of the Wells type striving in vain to solve the mystery of the American character, and "the uselessness of the gray-headed, slow-speaking Americans to gray who watch your face as they talk to you. They talk about themselves as we never do."

CHECK FLAMES THAT PERIL 400 ON LINER

With her 400 passengers, excited and alarmed, crowded on an upper deck, the National Greek Line steamship Byron, operating out of Boston and New York, blazed in the storm today as he lay blanketed in fog off Ambrose Lightship, New York.

Due to land her passengers in three hours and to sail again from Boston October 16 from Commonwealth Pier, the liner of the Greek Line, whose office is at No. 741 Harrison avenue, took fire at dawn. Out through the fog, the 800 or so passengers pounded and sparked from the ship's radio, bringing a city of New York fire tug, a police launch and two pilot boats to assist in stemming the sweep of flame and smoke.

HARVARD KOSHER CAFE IS OPENED BY HEBREWS

A Kosher cafeteria at Harvard College was opened today under the auspices of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations in America. It is the first time, according to the union, that Jewish students at Harvard have had a place to eat in keeping with the dietary laws of their religion.

Opening of the restaurant, with its Kosher inscription on the windows in the very shadow of the venerable Harvard hall, drew something of a stir because of the attitude taken by the college authorities a few years ago in restricting the number of Jews and other races among entering students.

Beginning a battle over liquor that, if recovered, must be given a ride down to East Brewster, and then back again into the Appellate Stores under Federal lock and key, Morris Harker of Dorchester appeared in Federal Court today.

The liquor is valued at $30,000. It was seized last November in an East Brewster raid. 'PEACHES' BROWNING'S MAY AND DECEMBER ROMANCE CHILLS WITH THE EARLY OCTOBER FROST

WHEN ALL THE WORLD SEEMED GAY

"Peaches," on the day she became "Sweet Sixteen," had a wonderful celebration in the Browning apartment in New York. Her 51-year-old husband, Edward W. Browning, is holding his adopted daughter, Dorothy Sunshine. Mrs. Carolyn Heenan, "Peaches'" mother, is the fourth in the party.

I'm Her Slave, Love Drunk-Browning

Peaches is the Cinderella of my heart!

And for her clock of life will never strike 12.

Here always will be a fairyland of love—a paradise on earth.

The exuberant thrill I experienced when I first laid eyes on Peaches is still at its highest pitch. Not for a single moment has it given the least sign of losing its ecstasy; I'm sure it never will.

I knew the first time I saw her that she was the girl of my dreams. I loved her. I saw the blazing reflection of my own love in her eyes. Here was my perfect mate!

I could not trust myself alone with her. I was too overwhelmed with love. My heart was in a tumult. Was I too old? Could I make her happy?

I could. I must.

When a man finds such a true soul mate he must claim her for his own, no matter what. Age, wealth, poverty, public opinion—all obstacles melt before the searing flame of love.

It was something we both knew. For Peaches, too, felt the turbulence of passionate love surge through her veins at our first meeting. We have talked about it since, and neither of us has ceased to wonder.

At first I did not dare to tell Peaches of my love. I could not believe our glorious dream was coming true. Then she proposed to me. When she lay in bed suffering from acid burns I told her we would be married.

She said nothing, but flung her arms round my neck; kissed me madly. I was intoxicated with joy. She kept saying over and over:

"I love you, daddy. I am happy; oh, so happy." We were married the next day. Our honeymoon—at the Gramatan Inn, Bronxville—was a strange one.

We had breakfast in bed. I played that she was a great princess. I put on a silk dressing gown and wound a big silk handkerchief around my head. Now I was her Oriental slave, serving her breakfast. When we got tired of playing we'd make unfeigned love to each other.

I am supremely happy, and so is she. I will protect her with that avowed force which God gives to men in love. She is my life happiness. She is everything to me.

MORE ARRESTS 400 IN PERIL ON BLAZING STEAMSHIP

Sumerville, N. J., Oct. 3 (U. I. Press)—The State has completed its investigation of the murders of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Hall and now is concentrating its efforts to bring to account persons alleged to have obstructed justice by withholding information concerning the murders.

Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, will ask for the indictment of at least four persons on charges of obstructing justice and perjury when the grand jury convenes Friday. It has been learned.

The time between today and the first trial, November 3, will be spent in gathering together loose ends of the case and in determining to what extent, if any, officials were corrupt.

In the 808 signal the liner's position was given as in Ambrose Channel, between Ambrose Lightship and Fort Hamilton and Wadsworth, and the freighter William J. Gaynor, with a police boat accompanying, raced to the location from their Brooklyn docks.

Radio signals sent back to the Byron brought a response from her operator, but when details of the fire were asked communication ceased and no details were forthcoming.

A telephone message was put through to the quarantine station by the marine department of fire inspectors, the quarantine station declaring that, as far as could be ascertained, the fire was in the stern and the passengers were not in danger.

The Byron, eighteen days out from Piraeus, Greece, the port of Athens, was due to land her passengers at 9 A. M. today. A number of the passengers are American citizens returning from their old country.

Despite her Greek ownership, the Byron flies the British flag. She was built in Greenock, Scotland in 1914, is 275 gross tonnage, 410 feet long with 88-foot beam and 10 feet draft.

Excitement prevailed for a time in the Navy Yard near Pier 7, where there an alarm was turned in from the 44th, behind the Navy Yard and Charlestown fire-fighting apparatus and sailors from other ships doubled-to the scene with buckets.

The flash caused a cloud of smoke and no damage. Yesterday one man was injured and Pier 7 damaged when a traveling crane tipped over.

'PEACHES' QUILTS BROWNING COLD; TAKES HER FINERY

They carried four bulging suitcases to Mrs. Heenan's apartment, procured for her by Browning about a month ago at No. 600 West 42nd Street and Fifty-seventh Street. "Peaches" possesses considerable clothing and jewelry valued at about $15,000.

Plans to Hunt Her. "Peaches" left her "Cinderella man" Sunday. Browning called the morning a temporary one, and said "Peaches" had merely gone to visit her mother for a few days.

Today, however, Browning confessed that he does not know the whereabouts of his girl bride, and wishes he did. He said he intended to start a search for her if he doesn't hear from her today.

He sat in his office, a lonely-looking man, with worried eye, awaiting a telephone call from "Peaches" throughout the day, neglecting his business, and failing to call on his attorney downtown about a civil suit pending against him.

Mrs. Heenan recently told a Boston Evening American reporter whom she met in a Greenwich Village restaurant that she was lonely for "Peaches." She recalled the reporter as a man who had visited her home several times to see "Peaches" when the girl was suffering from acid burns, just prior to her marriage.

Tires of Browning. "I am so lonely for my little girl," Mrs. Heenan said. "She had to leave. We always slept together before her marriage, and now I have to sleep alone. She was my all. But I shall have something important to tell you soon."

"What?" asked the reporter. "Has 'Peaches' grown tired of Browning?" "No, I'm afraid not," said the mother sadly. "There were tears in her eyes as she talked of her daughter, whom she called 'Babe.' 'Peaches' was her only child, and her husband, from whom Mrs. Heenan is separated, has often said that after 'Peaches' was born his wife's love for him seemed to have been transferred to the daughter."

At the time of their marriage, last April, Browning said that wherever "Peaches" and "Peaches" lived, Mrs. Heenan would live. This continued until a month ago, when, according to reports, Mrs. Heenan complained that Heenan was monopolizing her daughter.

Browning then informed her that he had rented an apartment for her uptown. "Peaches," however, preferred her mother's stuffy apartment, and Mrs. Heenan, who had been brought up to the air comfort of New York, and would spend the entire day with her.

HUB FACES BITTER BATTLE OF MUSIC

JACCHIA CRASHES SYMPHONY

Boston faces a musical war with a new orchestra prepared to battle for honors with Boston's famous Symphony Orchestra, and headed by Agide Jacchia, for eight years conductor of the Pop Concerts.

Jacchia himself, only today returned from Italy, made something of a mystery of his plans for the future, but what little he did admit gave evidence to the report current among Boston music lovers that he will head a great orchestra of his own in this city.

The maestro retired from his leadership just before the conclusion of the symphony season, protesting that the Boston Symphony Orchestra had curtailed the Pop Orchestra that it had become "an unbalanced and inadequate orchestra."

In his studio at No. 259 Huntington Avenue the former Pop conductor said today: "I returned from Italy only last night. I am not yet prepared to make public my plans for the coming season, but you can say without question that I will not be a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and also that I will be in Boston the coming season."

Further than that I am not prepared to say at present."

Jacchia's trip to Italy, the music master permitted to allow himself to be interviewed by the press. "Italy is always an inspiration to me, but on this trip I was so busy that I had little time for study. I left on July 7 last, and during my visit I talked with many famous musicians. I was compelled to return to Boston early for I have a great deal of work before me."

"I do not care to go into my plans any further at present, but I shall probably have something of interest to say in a short time."

I repeat that I shall remain in Boston, but not as conductor of the Pop Orchestra."

PARKING LIMIT IN BROOKLINE
A parking time limit in Coolidge Corner was predicted today, following the announcement that the selectmen and merchants will confer next Monday on ways of remedying the congestion in that part of Brookline.

The congestion, police say, is caused by automobiles from the corner who leave their cars in Coolidge Corner to avoid Boston parking regulations. The congestion has become acute since the Boston police have placed parking law violators in the conference is expected to decide on a one-hour parking limit in reservations and 15-minute limit along street curbs.

Miner Lost Death Fight By 100 Feet

Rockwell, Tenn., Oct. 5.—(A.P.)—The almost superhuman struggle of one miner to escape and his failure with fresh air and safety but a hundred feet away was revealed today as rescue crews penetrated deep into the Roane Iron Company's coal mine near here, where an explosion is believed to have taken a toll of at least 28 lives.

Apparently crawling more than 1800 feet in an effort to reach an airlock, Clarence Stevenson, 36, victim to the deadly "after damp" a few minutes before he would have reached safety, members of the rescue crew which found his body declared.

FIND TWO MORE BODIES.
Two more bodies, making six, were recovered today from the mine. These brought out were Stevenson and his brother, Philip Dalton. There are believed to be 22 still in the mine.

If record of mine officials are correct, 25 men were in the explosion zone. Four men came out alive, two of them uninjured.

O. E. Boies was seriously injured by the explosion and gas, and Eddie Davis was found a mile from the scene in an unconscious condition. Indications of fire in the explosion zone impeded rescue work today. Rescue crews were forced to withdraw while "deadlocking" of the dip where the men were trapped was undertaken to assure safety of rescuers.

PROTECT RESCUERS.
"One man alive is worth ten dead," said Captain J. T. Thompson, local postmaster, who has taken charge of rescue operations. In explaining the new move, "deadlocking" of the entry, he said, tended to suppress fire and make the area safe for rescuers.

Relatives of the imprisoned men are in the mine, but all hope that any of the men have survived the gaseous fumes and cave-ins has been abandoned. Veterans miners say no life would possibly exist where the men were caught.

'ALL TICKLED DID IT' SAYS CURLEY

"Everybody's glad I did it," said Mayor James M. Curley today, commenting on his fistic encounter with Frederick W. Everright, Boston publisher, in State street.

"I plan no legal action; I'm no cop," said Publisher Everright.

Both men declared with vehemence that they stand today just where they did before the battle, the former mayor insisting that he will not "stand for" any more petulant statements about himself or his family, the publisher announcing that he has already launched another article about Curley.

"Everybody I have met told me that I treated him just as I should have," said Curley. "Everybody is tickled to death that I did it. It was a long time coming to him."

Everright said: "Five years ago Curley came to me and asked me to support him for mayor and I told him I would on certain conditions. He complied with those conditions and so we elected him mayor of Boston."

"I wish to reiterate that I was struck from behind. I won't take legal action, but I think Curley will; that's why he said I struck him first blow. But that's the bunk."

Present Homespun Suit to Mayor

A "Good Will Committee" from Asheville, N. C., "did Boston" today, presented the Governor and the Mayor with homespun suits (two pairs trousers) in the raw material stage and toured the harbor to get a look at the water side of the city.

Headed by Mayor John H. Catterly of Asheville, the North Carolina contingent arrived in the Hub via the Portland flyer that brought them down from northern New England points.

In automobiles they were taken to the Bellevue Hotel for breakfast and then, in a bus, they toured Boston—ancient and modern—for a couple of hours when it was time for John C. Blair, chairman of the House Chamber of Commerce reception committee, to take them to the State House.

At the State House thirteen yards of Asheville homespun charged with a new suit for Governor Fuller the goal.

Next a visit to City Hall with a similar presentation to Mayor Nichols and followed a visit to the Chamber of Commerce, where President Andrew J. Peters welcomed the delegation.

At noon a luncheon was served in the Chamber main dining room, with President Peters presiding. Speakers included Captain Robert Dillier, founder of the Dollar Steamship Lines and declared to be the original model of "Garry Risker," Edward E. Whiting of the Boston Herald and former President F. E. Snyder of the Chamber.

The harbor trip was scheduled for the afternoon—then bed, an early rising tomorrow and departure for Hartford and New York.

MISLAID HIS HORSE AND COULDN'T THINK WHERE

Some day someone is going to invent a horse that can't be lost or mislaid, but if this had been done before, Mounted Officer Barney White would not be up before a trial today, charged with neglect of duty.

Officer White is alleged to have been mislaid, as far as his signal horse was concerned, from 4 1/2 to 5 p.m. today, when he was found by Sergeant Joe Comerford looking for his horse.

The joke was on the mounted officer, for the sergeant had found the horse a long time before that.

White said he had seen someone setting suspiciously in an alley, had tied the horse and not noticed the light of time until nearly 8 o'clock.

600 TAILORS STRIKE IN N. Y.

New York, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—Fashion shows in Fifth Avenue shops and mailer establishments, including resmakers, estimated at 1,400, are at a standstill today.

They demand a 40-hour week against 44 hours; a time guarantee of 44 weeks a year against 20.5 per cent. wage increase for those setting above the wage scale and a 10 per cent. increase for those setting less than the wage scale.

Bees Buzz, Flower Grows on 85-Ft. Church Spire

Unionville, Ct., Oct. 5 (A.P.)—The eighty-five foot steeple of the Congregational Church is a study for a naturalist. At the top, which is covered by a brass cup, clusters a swarm of bees. Twenty-five feet below, growing from a cradle in the east wall is a sunflower in full bloom, its stem three feet long.

JOHNSON TELLS OF AWARDED BIG CLAIM

New York, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—Alvin R. Johnson testified today that he immediately after denying as invalid the Edward Greutert claim for 21 shares of impounded stock on Aug. 2, 1921, he received another much larger claim, including the same 21 shares, and began an investigation which ended in his awarding $7,000,000 to Richard Merton Gurnea, metal magnate.

"Did you not connect these two claims in your mind at the time?" United States Attorney Buckner asked.

"I did not."

"But you see now that the same names of companies stare right out from both claims?"

"I see that now."

"And yet at that time you denied the little claim and awarded the big one, which included the little one without ever realizing their similarity?"

"I did."

Johnson in the third defense witness in the trial of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, attorney general and alien property custodian at the time Warren G. Harding was President. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of their best services in permitting release to Merton of the $7,000,000 proceeds of impounded assets of the American Metal Company.

MAY HOLD TWO IN RAY STEVE GIRL'S DEATH

New York, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—Magistrate Overmeyer in Homeless Court was to announce today whether Francis Murphy and John J. Fitzpatrick of this city, shall be held in connection with the death of pretty Dorothy Smith, youthful model from Holden, Mass., who leaped from a window of Murphy's apartment last week.

At the hearing of the youths in Magistrate Overmeyer's court, testimony was brought out that the girl had talked of suicide, and had suggested such action to a note written to friends.

The suicide testimony was introduced by defense attorneys to offset statements made by Mrs. Eva J. Fisher, who lives near Murphy's apartment, that she heard arguments between the youths and saw the girl hanging from the window, catching the hands of a man. The latter released his grip, the woman went, allowing the girl to fall this story to her death.

The suicide testimony was advanced by Felipe J. Vaccaro, a Venezuelan actor, who said he broke off relations with the girl a few weeks ago. Since then, he confessed, she had been depressed and morose.

PARIS REPORTS QUAKE 7,000 MILES DISTANT

Paris, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—Violent earth shocks were registered by the observatory of the Paris Scientific Institution at 7:57 o'clock Sunday evening. The shocks lasted more than four hours.

'BASHFUL BRIDE'
AGAIN IN LOVE

Belgrade, Oct. 5 (U.N.A.)—Mary London Baker, the "bashful bride" of Chicago, who has been engaged and disengaged several times, today is reported to be contemplating matrimony again.

This time Borislar Pouritch, who for three years has been contending with Lord Carmarthen for the hand of the American girl, appears to be the lucky man. Pouritch fell in love with Mary in 1923, when he was attached to the Serbian consulate in Chicago.

The report was given considerably in evidence when Miss Baker arrived today, and the official announcement was expected momentarily.

Mary gained fame for her sudden engagements and their equally sudden endings in connection with young Allister McCormack, heir to the Harvester millions. She kept him in a state of nervous suspense for years, and although they almost reached the altar a number of times Miss Baker always changed her mind at the last moment.

DUCE THANKED BY CARDINAL

Rome, Oct. 5 (A.P.)—A reference to Premier Mussolini by Cardinal Merry Del Val, in his speech at Assisi, during the celebration of the seventh centenary of the death of St. Francis, was the subject of animated comment in Vatican and political circles today.

Mentioning the "officers and soldiers" of the glorious Italian army, as among those to be thanked for their contribution toward the success of the centenary celebration, the Cardinal is quoted as adding:

"My thanks are due also to him who holds in his hands the reins of the Italian government; who with a clear vision of the reality of things has wished, and still wishes, that religion be respected, honored and protected."

"Vigilantly protected by God, he has wisely utilized the faith of the nation, increasing its prestige throughout the world."

CLYDE LINE INCREASES

The Omark and Omega, plying between Boston, Charleston and Jacksonville, will be augmented by the addition of the Omega and Omark, recently repaired in drydock. According to the present schedule a ship will arrive on Mondays and Thursdays, and will sail for the southern ports on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

YOUNG WIFE SWALLOWS

Worcester, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Florence McKoon, twenty-four, of Kossuth street, Worcester, wife of Francis McKoon, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing poison after she had been in a quarrel with her husband, police say.

At Worcester City Hospital the woman is expected to recover.

'CRAIG'S WIFE' SHOWS FAMILY IN STRIFE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WITH something of a new twist, "Craig's Wife" appears like the real thing in family strife, although there is enough show effect to make it a play to see. It is as if he had found it hanging out of suburban windows—George Kelly, author, slips down insured, even if he fails to convince the errant critic that life is as bad as he thinks it.

Not even the possession of the Pulitzer Prize at the best of the 1923 output of plays makes "Craig's Wife" appear like the real thing in family strife, although there is enough show effect to make it a play to see. It is as if he had found it hanging out of suburban windows—George Kelly, author, slips down insured, even if he fails to convince the errant critic that life is as bad as he thinks it.

As done by Chrystal Herne, Mrs. Craig is efficient, but, she drives her husband, her friends and her own servants out of the home by means that are harsh, cold and unfeeling. The wonder of the play is that Craig should be so much of a man, and yet so much of a woman, and yet so much of a man, and yet so much of a woman.

Mrs. Herne gave a capital performance if you like your drama hard, cold and relentless. With relative servants and husband finally walking out of the apartment, it is just what it is to call it a happy ending. In the end, it is just what it is to call it a happy ending.

The supporting cast, Anne Sutherland and Charles Trenchard, play an honest, true, faithful, there are few flaws in the setting.

"Craig's Wife" is a good deal like meeting hungry lions on a lonely valley, but it is a play to see.

HALIGONIAN TO START IN RACE MONDAY

Gloucester, Oct. 3.—Just as all hope for a foreign entry in the American foreigner's race here Monday faded, directors of the schooner Haligonian of Halifax today wired that their vessel would start in the competition, putting an international complexion on the event of the year. Interest along the waterfront soared to fever heat when the news that the Haligonian would compete was issued abroad.

Decision of the directors of the Canadian schooner to start their boat in the race followed a request for a postponement of the race until the Haligonian could be confirmed. This was refused by the race committee.

Financial difficulties which also held up the Haligonian directors were overcome. The wire which was received by Wilmet Reed, secretary of the race committee, read:

"After reading your wire this morning, directors of the Haligonian passed the vessel over to the trustees of the International Trophy Association. Definitely decided to send Haligonian to Gloucester. Will leave Friday and hope to be on starting line Monday morning.

To all and sincere desire that race will be a splendid success. Let us know if there is any way we can cooperate."

Crews of the American entries, the Henry Ford and the Columbia, began shortly after daybreak to tie their boats for the race. Trial sails will be held late today or tomorrow.

The second race will be held Tuesday, Columbus Day, and will draw a holiday crowd.

True Stories from Real Life

"Head Winds Right For Royal Sails"

The American and Advertiser represent the ship you see, sailing into a head wind and winning the race, and the other contestants, representing the other Boston Newspapers, left behind.

During the month of September every newspaper in Boston lost in Classified advertising lineage except the American and Advertiser. When all other papers are losing—head winds are blowing—but head winds are right for Royal Sails! The American and Advertiser offer the greatest circulation, the lowest rates and the closest co-operation to classified advertisers in New England—therefore, the gains, irrespective of opposition.

The American and Advertiser are crashing through to victory in classified advertising on merit. Ever increasing numbers of advertisers are realizing that the American and Advertiser offer the best buy in Boston to classified advertisers.

September, 1926, compared with September, 1925, shows the following gain and losses, as taken from the monthly statement of Boston Newspapers' Statistical Bureau:

American and Advertiser	81,990 Lines Gain
(E. American—49,272; D. A.—32,718; A. Advertiser—201)
Herald-Traveler	29,914 Lines Lost
(Traveler—16,316; M. Herald—13,598; B. Herald—1,000)

Globe	9,671 Lines Lost
(Globe—9,671; M. Globe—0; B. Globe—0)
Transcript	8,807 Lines Lost

The SECRET Studio by HAZEL STON LIVINGSTON

A Boston Story With a Charming Girl Heroine

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college, but lack of money prevents her from taking part in college social activities. Philip Eames, a young man who has been in Japan, comes home and Rosemary welcomes him happily. She imagines he is in love with her, but is speedily disillusioned. She quits college and gets a job in a fashionable bookstore through a friend, Nina Clark. Nina takes Rosemary up the back stairs in the building to a studio occupied by a group of artists. They call it the Secret Studio. They hold a party and Rosemary attends with Larry Kane, one of the artists, Sunday; the next day Rosemary and Larry go to the studio alone, where they are surprised by Sloan Whitney.

CHAPTER XX.
THERE she sat in the rocking chair in the very middle of the room. Aunt Kitty, who hadn't been to see them in years, not since her husband died.

But she wasn't the same Aunt Kitty. The Aunt Kitty Rosemary remembered was drab and gray, shuffling around in negligees, talking about rents and mortgages and ways of saving money. This Aunt Kitty had been spending money. Her hair, once a little gray-streaked knob on the top of her head, was red and frizzled; her withered cheek was pink, and her poor, flat feet were encased in patent leather pumps with amazing heels.

"Well, well, how she's grown up!" Come, like Aunt Kitty! I do declare she's a picture!" The family followed Rosemary in. She was flushed. It was plain she was upset by the unexpected visit.

Aunt Kitty winked at Rosemary. "Now, Mary, don't be so odd. Girls will be girls. Let her have a little innocent fun, eh, Merton?" It was evident, "Yes, but don't know these people, Kitty. Now, continued on page 15, column 3.

QUIZ ALLEN ON PARTY DRY PLANK

Asking an explanation of the Republican law enforcement plank in the light of the liquor situation in Carver, where 30 raids were made by State police, Mayor Talbot of Fall River, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor on the Democratic ticket, addressed an open letter to Lieutenant-Governor Frank G. Allen.

Talbot charges that "only the persistent clamor of the clergy and general public" caused the Carver clean-up.

His letter follows: "My Dear Mr. Allen—May I call your attention to two specific planks in your party platform. One plank promises the present give a 'dry' Carver as 'honest, efficient and businesslike.'"

"The plank states that the Republican party believes in the strict enforcement of all laws."

"But your administration is of course, will you kindly explain how it is that in the little town of Carver, Mass., on Saturday and Sunday, were made by the State police."

Gene Tunney Describes His Early Ambitions To Become Athlete

CHAPTER TWO

This is the second chapter of Gene Tunney's new story—written by himself—of his life and fighting career, written exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion

I WAS born at No. 111 Bank street, in the heart of Greenwich Village. I was not as husky a baby as was the serpent-strangling Hercules. Neither was I as puny as Voltaire, who shocked his nurse with his tiny size and later shocked governments with his mighty pen and brain.

I was what you might characterize as medium, weighing about eight pounds bottle-side, if I am to believe the ancient meat scale that my father John Tunney, so proudly adjusted. Since that day, twenty-eight years ago, both New York City and Gene Tunney have grown some. I have added about 180 pounds to my original capital of flesh and bone.

My parents were both strong, healthy, right-living people. They were natives of County Mayo, Ireland. I am not going to grow "sobby" in the manner athletes are supposed to grow and tell about our poverty, our heartaches, our troubles and how good I was to my folks.

I simply wish to set down that we lived a normal life, stuck close together, and that we made the best of things. We had to earn our bread before we ate it. I was not petted and coddled and spoiled, but I was given care and affection and a good example. I couldn't ask for a better heritage.

My father had a keen dry wit and we liked to hear his stories and what we now term "fine cracks." He was a householder. He worked hard. It was a blow when he passed away at the old home in the Village four years ago. I would that he could have lived to see me win the Heavyweight Title.

It someone had told my blunt-spoken father that his son was to become "a big personality," he might have turned in a fire alarm. They tell me that I was something of an early duckling when I was only two years old. I remember myself at about ten, when I was fairly sleekish and big boned, but rather pasty-faced.

Early Life in Greenwich Village

My early memories of the Village are interesting to me in the light of the present-day atmosphere there. While the Village—always a dear spot to me—retains much of its physical contour, with the winding streets, the snug brick houses and occasional little parks, it was not yet peopled by artists in my early childhood. The various "colony" came in about fifteen years ago.

When I was about six or seven, there were various social clubs down there. There was "The Hounds," a marching club, which early fired my ambitions to excel in physical strength.

The "Hounds" used to get out on wintry days, wearing patent leather caps and white shirts. Of course they had good wool sweaters and sometimes heavy red flannels under those warty white shirts, but they gave an appearance of hardy and resolute men out to engage in great tournaments.

We kids used to follow the "Hounds" as they marched northward from the Village to somewhere on the North River, say about Eighty-sixth street. There they cracked open kegs of ale which were supplied by O'Reilly, Skelley & Fogarty's Brewery official "soda" manufacturers for Village frolics.

I may add here that I never have had a drink of liquor, beer or other alcoholic beverages in my life, so I cannot attest personally to the grade of liquor cheer so gleefully sampled by the heroic "Hounds."

Occasionally during the march of the "Hounds" some intrepid spectator would assail the paraders with the "razzberry." This usually was followed by the dropping out of one of the fearless "Hounds," who with next "roundhouse" swings would settle accounts and then rejoin his perambulating colleagues, to the cheers of the kid followers.

I believe it was watching the quarterstaff and wooden broadsword games and tactics of these marching clubs that first fired me with ambition to excel in personal conflicts.

By instinct, I learned that by exercise I could make my chest larger, my muscles more supple and my system more properly tuned. I learned the value of eating plain food by watching a pet dog. One day I gave him some shrimp with mayonnaise and something else upon it and the pup had too much sense to eat it.

They Live Long in New York

One of our most distinguished Village citizens today is the Hon. John Voorhis, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall. He was just as distinguished twenty years ago. I used to like to see him walking about the streets in fine health at the age of 76. He is now ninety-six years old. Don't let anyone tell you that they don't live long in Greenwich Village!

Deputy Comptroller Frank Prial's father had a wagon spoke factory in Greenwich Village when I was a boy. The "Hounds" used to get their tough single sticks there. The Prial mill was covered and was spacious.

It was there that I used to watch boys of the neighborhood settle their little differences with their fists. Up to the age of seven I had shown no inclination to become adept with my fists. I was more interested in swimming and running. I attended the parochial school, where later I was something of an athlete and growing tall and gangling at an alarming rate.

In the next chapter I am going to tell why I gained a reputation for "not being a killer," because it was when I was a boy of eight that I developed much of my present temperance when under fire. Tomorrow Tunney tells how he first became a fighter.

Inside Golf

How the clubhead is pushed to "do the trick" in putting the ball into the hole is a difficult phase of the golf swing as a whole for the average player. It is in this phase that the player is supposed to feel an "easy" to help with all his strength. It is all right to do this in a way, but the knack of it lies in keeping your strength in back of the clubhead—that is, in using your arms, but not your hands, in the follow-through. It is a matter of throwing it all about of the clubhead. The simplest way to get an understanding of how the clubhead works is to take a

STUDENTS IN STRIKE

Seattle, Oct. 5 (AP)—Dr. Henry Suzzallo, eleven years president of the University of Washington, was out of office today, the last day of two years' duration because of a strike by the faculty. Supporters of Suzzallo's educational program and Chancellor Roland.

Students of the university, a majority of whom are appointees of the state's governing party, accepted Sussalzo's resignation. He protested, as no reasons had been given for his dismissal and he had no right to be removed from office without him a leave of absence and appointed David Thomson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and dean of the university's governing party.

Four thousand of the school's 6,500 students held a torchlight procession through the campus last night chanting, "Strike, Strike, Strike!" They roared in from Sussalzo's office where he had asked them to refrain from demonstrations and to return to the Unsigned notices appeared at the homes of the 12 fraternity houses today asking students to refrain from attending classes today. The notices, which purported to have been distributed by the student council, stated the request was made "In the spirit of revolt, but in a spirit of appreciation of Dr. Suzzillo."

UJ's III feeling toward the educator was said to have started when Suzzillo, as chairman of the State Council of Defense during the war, ordered the closing of the day in Washington lumber camps.

Hartley, a timber owner, opposed the suggestion, which was adopted

STUDENT ASKS $350 FOR WRITING FOR PROFESSOR

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—Prof. Arthur J. Jordan, a geologist at Northwestern University, has been sued for $350 by a student claiming the money was promised for writing one of the professor's books.

The suit was filed by Philip J. Snow, who says he wrote a column for the professor's book, which was originally scheduled to come out in 1973. The book's popularity, at the request of Prof. Snow, he contends, has caused the publisher to make other changes last Spring. Jordan's suit, claiming that the $350 was promised when he declined to do a full-length book, was filed in the

The Girl and the Chief

What Is Each Thinking? Nothing, Perhaps.

This is printed because it is NEWS. You may live long, and never again see a picture of an Indian chief, one hundred and four years old, riding on a bicycle for two, with a beautiful long-haired girl, winner of eight beauty contests in Los Angeles.

What is the old chief, whose proud name is White Horse Eagle, THINKING? Perhaps he says to himself, "She's a nice looking young palooka square. Bigger years ago, when I was twenty-four, and the Indians owned all this country, I should have been puzzled in this situation."

"On the one hand I should like to have taken this young lady to my tepee as one of my squaws. On the other hand, it would have been a great temptation to take home such a beautiful long-haired girl, winner of eight beauty contests in Los Angeles."

Perhaps, and more probably, the old Indian aged one hundred and four, isn't thinking of anything at all.

The young girl perhaps thinks, "Well, this will get in the papers anyhow, and that is always desirable. Besides, this is a nice old chief. It's very unusual to be one hundred and four years old, and I guess he would like to have this photograph to send to his friends. It must have been funny when men like this were the only men in California. Who in the world could a girl MARRY in those days?"

But the probability is that the young lady, like the old chief, is not thinking. She is SMILING VERY HARD, as you see. And while smiles are pretty, you rarely smile AND think at the same time.

GOOD WILL

A Trainload Arrives Today from North Carolina by Way of Canada—No Argosy Was Ever More Welcome

When State and City officials and representatives of our own commercial organization say a word of welcome today or tomorrow to the Good Will visitors from North Carolina, they will be giving utterance to the sincerely friendly sentiment which animates every Boston heart.

Among these visitors are more than one hundred business men, representing Buncombe County and Western North Carolina in general. Their tour is under the auspices of the Asheville Chamber of Commerce. President Holmes Bryson is with them.

What our friends are here for is to let New England know more about Asheville and the industries of that region. We know Asheville as a good place to go to "in between" summer in the North and winter in the South. Holmes Bryson and his friends will tell us that it is an all-the-year-round resort without a superior.

Industries? These boosters have brought up into the home of the Woolen Mill suits of North Carolina homespun, so be presented to Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols!

In the country where the go-getter originated, and where, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, so many of the breed remain, the boosters from North Carolina will feel at home. Boston's ONE regret is that President Bryson, the other gentlemen, the ladies and children of his party cannot remain with us long enough to become truly acquainted.

Safety for Savings

That's the Main Thing.

Two Congressmen object to big banks establishing numerous branches. They say they want little bankers to have a chance to compete with big ones, and big bank branches prevent that.

The Congressmen should think about DEPOSITORS. The latter want the banks to be SAFE. They are not especially anxious that many poor little bankers have a chance to play with their money at a profit. LITTLE bankers can operate in LITTLE places. Big bankers should be allowed to spread out as far as they can go, with safety for depositors, in big places.

Big and little bankers should be under strict supervision. The biggest bank of all ought to be the SAVING BANK OF THE UNITED STATES POST OFFICE, offering all the facilities of any other savings bank, with a fair interest rate, and thus encouraging the people to save.

But of course the big and little banks will always combine to prevent that, as they have done successfully thus far.

KNOWLEDGE IN LIFE'S ANCIENT VOLUMES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

E. SLOSSON describes the scientist as a reader of a book that has been issued in an uncut edition. He is forced to open its pages one by one as he progresses.

This simile applies to the manner in which most of the important labor of life is carried on, and most of the valuable knowledge that is uncovered or accrues throughout the years is obtained.

All of it is read in uncut volumes. It is the first reading that takes the time. Those who follow find the pages cut and the reading comparatively easy.

In the matter of government humanity is feeling its way forward, experimenting as it goes, reading one page at a time and laboring before it can turn over another leaf. Looking back, it is easy for us to see where mistakes have been made. But we are merely glancing over the part that has been gone over, read and cut. Going beyond the knowledge we have accepted so far is the part that requires the struggle.

In the home mothers find each child an uncut volume. No two are alike. The volume of each child's character is a new one. No two can be handled exactly the same. Each must be approached from a different angle. Each develops in a different way.

As it grows from stage to stage there is a need for continual adjustment if the child is to be understood. How to treat it is a problem that grows with individual cases and for which no rule can be laid down. To read it aright requires patience, care and painstaking labor.

Developing your own life, too, is reading an uncut volume. Success, achievement, attaining worth while ends, are made in different ways by different people. No rule can be laid down. Each man and woman has to work his way forward, cutting the leaves as he goes.

For everyone, life itself is the great uncut book. You can't jump ahead and find out how it all comes out. You have to read each page, one after the other, and cut the leaves as you go.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Odds and Ends of the Town

By BERT FORD

Form the habit of thinking good of others and others will think good of you.

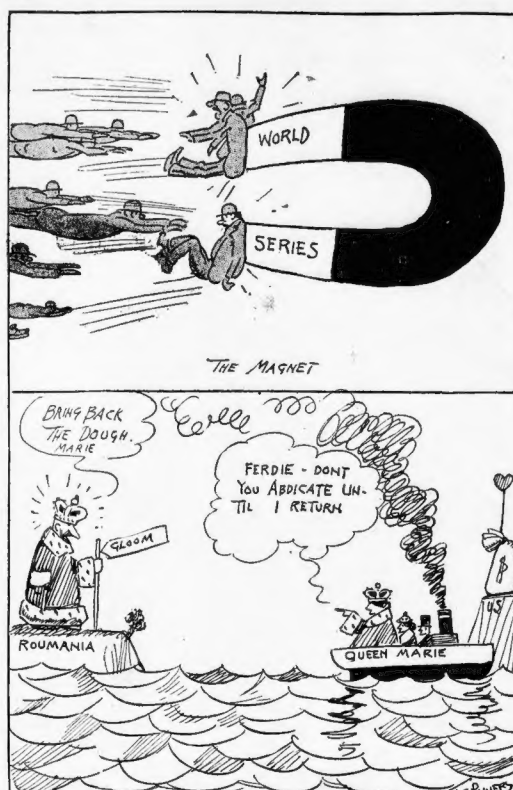

PEN VS. SWORD. CAPTAIN SHEDDEN R. ARNAT, attached to the finance department of the U. S. Army, is a living example of the poetic passage. "The pen is mightier than the sword"—in peace times. As disarming officer at the Army Base, CAPTAIN ARNAT signs from 10,000 to 15,000 checks monthly for government disbursements, including pay checks for members of the National Guard all over New England. CAPTAIN ARNAT's hobbies are golf and long hikes in the country. He is a lover of Nature.

SKIPPING AT CUNARD PIER. Having sailed the seven seas, as boy and man, CAPTAIN R. G. PALFREY is now a familiar figure at CUNARD Pier, East Boston, where he has charge of the docking of CUNARD and ANCHOR liners. He is marine superintendent of the CUNARD line. He sports almost as much gold hair, as an admiral, but the CAPTAIN isn't the dress as a common seaman. Having skipped before the mast as a lad from LAYTON, PAOL.

HARBOR WATCHDOGS. Transfer in the grimiest cloak is constantly met by the crews of the harbor police boats GUARDIAN, EDWIN L. CURTIS and WATCHMAN, the latter known as "SEAKY". CAPTAIN ROSS B. PERRY is in charge of the HARBOR POLICE. CAPTAIN PERRY has been in command twenty-one years and for four years previous was attached to the Harbor Police station, a mere landlubber then.

INTERNAL VIGILANCE. "Internal Vigilance" was written for CAPTAIN PERRY's sailor crew. The skipper's sidekick is LIEUTENANT FIELD G. SWENDEMAN, a radio fan. PERRY and SWENDEMAN operate in day cruising of the harbor, which means picking up every piece of abandoned property. SWENDEMAN lives in ROXBOROUGH and CAPTAIN PERRY in DORCHESTER.

"MISSING IN ACTION?" REBELS CAPTAIN PERRY and LIEUTENANT FIELD G. SWENDEMAN are the harbor police crew. CHITTY and MARION are Jack-of-all-trades and take pride in a harrowing experience when the troop transport comes with the boys from FRANCE. His son who served with honor in "Hattery," that autumn, was killed in "Hattery" in action. SERGEANT CARLSON wanted every kid with heavy boots, but his boy came back later.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS article is dedicated to The Parents of Girls. It is written in behalf of The Parents of Some Boys.

And I hope it starts something. Howard is a fine, husky youngster, twenty-two. No child genius—but a clean, likable kid who will make his way if given half a chance. He is very much in love with Marie, aged twenty, who is the choice sweetheart of his mother and papa's eye.

Howard and Marie are engaged. And Marie's papa and mama are all snickered up about it. They admit that Howard is a nice kid. But they say that a "nice kid" isn't good enough for their Girl. "You're the honest and kind and industrious and popular and has earned the respect of his business associates. But even that isn't enough. What has he DONE?"

When you've forced to admit that Howard hasn't really done up much of a record, you get outside of behaving himself and holding down a job which pays him per month and may some day pay much more.

"But isn't that enough?" cries Marie to Mother and Dad. "I'm sure that lots and lots of people have started on less than that. And if I'm willing to work hard and do without—"

"You don't know what you're talking about," snorted Dad and Mother. "You're nothing but a baby and we don't intend to let you ruin your life for a childish fancy. He's a nice kid, but he isn't good enough for you. He'll never really amount to anything. He hasn't brought you up to make a match like that."

So, unless Marie takes the bit in her teeth and tells Howard to go to get the air and romance which she needs, Marie and Howard are some one who is "good enough" for their darling.

What's Marie worth as a WORKING CITIZEN? No, it isn't an important question. It's an extremely pertinent one.

While time has passed when it was enough for a woman to be a pretty, attractive female. In this modern world, wives should qualify as well.

The theory of animal life occurs "when natural conditions, warmth and moisture, are right for it, as once was the condition during the Eocene age when the first of all species appeared, not from eggs or seeds but by natural law, as ordained by our Lord, the Creator."

To prove that such "right conditions" for the creation of animal life will occasionally occur, the author relates the following stories: Many years ago Judge Role, Shaw, Mass., had a field of cotton growing close to his house under close observation. A warm July rain filled between the rows with pools of water, and in these pools there appeared minnows.

No stream flowed in or out of this field. It was utterly impossible for minnows to have worked their way from brake or layover, through the woods, across a public road, to the field.

During twenty years Mr. Role and the author had never seen a minnow in the brake or depression in the woods and between yard and field, and the time was four months after the spawning season.

In another article related the experience of R. C. Bolls, of Gonzales, Tex., who was visited by a million little frogs, about one-half to five-eighths of an inch long which he at first thought were yellow flies. This occurred early in June.

New Creations of Life

By Garrett P. Serviss, Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

In fighting the battle of science there is no more effective method of disarming the opponent than letting him tell his own story.

An Illinois reader sends me an account, credited to a book on "Ages of Ice and Creation," by George Prentiss, in which the origin of animal life is discussed.

The theory of animal life occurs "when natural conditions, warmth and moisture, are right for it, as once was the condition during the Eocene age when the first of all species appeared, not from eggs or seeds but by natural law, as ordained by our Lord, the Creator."

To prove that such "right conditions" for the creation of animal life will occasionally occur, the author relates the following stories: Many years ago Judge Role, Shaw, Mass., had a field of cotton growing close to his house under close observation. A warm July rain filled between the rows with pools of water, and in these pools there appeared minnows.

No stream flowed in or out of this field. It was utterly impossible for minnows to have worked their way from brake or layover, through the woods, across a public road, to the field.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

It was a promise and a prayer, that I hope we knew that conquered every grim despair the long days through. It showed us life as something dear and sweet indeed, its glow in every quietude clear to meet our need. The slow years passed and the world was full of us, we heard about all turmoil: "Be content," hope whispered softly. It told us of the days to be when we should be released from bondage, set free from cares men know. It told of old, old dreams and joys that in past days like singing birds came winding through our heads in a bid ways. Told of labor's tardy day made doubly dear because of many a bitter day of doubt and fear. It was a promise and a prayer, that we knew that led us on from the blackness there to skies all blue.

There is no reason to doubt that at the present time the most curious and most interesting experiments have shown that the cause of the extra drive of a living organism springs from non-living matter.

People in general show no comprehension of the extra drive of a living organism with which matters of life are connected. Copyright, 1926, International Feature Service, Inc.
